SUNDAY, AUGUST 6, 2017
Eighteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

In the TRANSFIGURATION, Jesus shook off the grime of daily night and showed apostles the daily freshness of God that dwelt deep within him.

Everything everywhere has brilliance within its existence because of God's undetected presence, because of the greatness of God's humble energy.

Since that is so, then why do human beings fail to reckon with his divine authority?

In other words, why do we go through daily life ignoring the very presence that so deeply grounds us?

Don't we ourselves need to be TRANSFIGURED?
